

Reprinted from

REAL ESTATE WEEKLY

November 30, 2016

GNYCUC Recognizes Top Construction Projects

The Greater New York Construction User Council (GNYCUC) recently hosted “Safety and Security: How Technology Can Help Protect Your Buildings and Workspaces.” Speakers included Edmund Hartnett, President of Brosnan Risk Consultants and Mike Rodgers, Executive Vice President of The Rodgers Group. Edmund is a retired NYPD Deputy Chief and former Police Commissioner of the city of Yonkers, NY and former Commanding Officer of the NYPD’s elite Intelligence Division. Because of his dedicated background in law enforcement, Ed has a wide range of experience in investigations, security, intelligence, threat assessments and risk management.

Mike specializes in taking military grade technology and transitioning it to property managers to enable them to better manage critical incidents as well as routine day-to-day operations. In addition to his duties at The Rodgers Group, he currently serves as an Assistant Professor, Military Science, at Princeton University.

The event brought together real estate owners and users of security services to discuss the evolving role technology plays in keeping New York City residents, businesses and property safe from threats.

